Media Coverage & High School Sports - What Is Expected?

One of the catch phrases for those of us involved in administering high school activities is "nothing brings communities together like high school sports."

Where else do you see such a diverse group of people of different ages, income levels, races, religions and political ideologies come together to root for a common cause. Whether they wear boots, Birkenstocks or wing tips, an entire community can rally around a high school program like little else.

Those of you who have ever called a coffee shop on a Saturday morning to get a Friday night football score you missed know this exact feeling. The entire town knows the final score and how many yards the school's star player collected.

All that enthusiasm is good, and it often adds some spark to communities that otherwise wouldn't have a great deal to get excited about. As a reporter, that enthusiasm makes your job easier. The crowd roars, and you write about what made them roar. A slam dunk brings down the house, and you have an instant highlight for the 10 o'clock news. It's a vicarious relationship between you and the community that draws you into the excitement.

We all know how much fun it can be to cover a winning team. Fans know you by name, the trips to away games don't seem nearly as long as they did before, and the players and coaches start to feel comfortable around you. In fact, sometimes you become so close to the coaches and players that they start telling you things "off the record" or letting you listen to strategy sessions. Your reward for committed coverage becomes open access to the program.

But, since only a few teams will win state championship trophies this year, we also know that most of those amazing teams have their seasons end in disappointment. It's human nature to feel a little bit of that disappointment when the team you've covered all year finds its dream season suddenly end in the playoffs.

That's when the expectations of you as a sports reporter must rise to the level of your profession and when you must have a firm grasp of the purpose of high school sports.

The first expectation is that you understand exactly what high school sports are. Yes, they are competitive, exciting and emotional contests, but most importantly, they are school-sponsored programs. Just as the marching band, the honor society and the yearbook staff provide educational opportunities beyond the confines of the classroom setting, so do the athletic programs. To overlook this very basic principle is to lose sight of the very reason interscholastic athletic programs exist.

Often the first opportunity young people have to handle adversity is through their experiences on a high school athletic team. How the adults around them react to those adverse situations can have a lasting effect on how the students handle similar situations later in life. The reaction or comments of a reporter may have just as much or more impact on a student as something said by a coach or parent -- good or bad.

For example, when a team's season ends on a controversial call, a player reading a newspaper headline the next day about how the ref "blew the call?" might carry that resentment and bitterness with him the rest of his life.

A game story or broadcast downplaying the controversy, but still accurately reporting the game's outcome, is much more conducive to the high school level of play and the impressionability of the students competing.

Clearly, a reporter has an obligation to tell the game story as he/she saw it, but how that story is presented can either enhance or hinder the learning process the game itself represents. Make no mistake, the power of the pen (or microphone) is mighty, and having the maturity and restraint to use that authority wisely and without emotional attachment will better define your personal character as well as that of your outlet.

The second expectation is that you have all the facts before you report. Misinformation, one-sided opinion pieces, or slanted editorials dealing with high school programs are counterproductive and generally only serve to create ill will, promote poor sportsmanship and perpetuate ignorance.

There have been countless times people have read or listened to mistake-ridden editorials about various high school athletic issues. In nearly every case, the columnist or broadcaster -- out of fear or indifference -- never bothered to check his/her facts, do 15 minutes of research or simply make a phone call to the school or MSHSAA office to get more details.

Though it's doubtful these same reporters would forget to check facts on a city council issue or seek out controversy about the FFA regional competition or class officer elections, they are all too anxious to find fault with high school athletes, coaches, administrators, policies, rules, playoff formats or other issues.

That approach nearly always causes negative and often costly ramifications for students and schools when an unbalanced or controversial report is released. At the very least, these types of stories can create division in a school community, and generally have no place in the educational mission of the school.

Establish what is truly newsworthy, and get the facts. Being thorough, accurate and balanced in presenting both sides of an issue allows your audience the opportunity to make its own decision on the matter for themselves. You may not like the outcome of a school or state decision, but reporting the process and interviewing those on both sides of the issue will undoubtedly create a higher-quality product for your outlet than a smear piece or slanted editorial.

The final expectation is that you have fun in your dealings with high school students. In covering high school sports, you have front-row access to some of the world's greatest works in progress -- young people.

Watching a 17-year-old handle a job, college prep classes, practices, games, exams, dating, peer pressure, family obligations and still have time to volunteer at the local food bank or homeless shelter is something that will blow you away. Those stories seldom get told, but they're in every community.

Having that perspective going into a high school gym or stadium can help you meet these expectations and excel in providing quality coverage to the students in your community. Covering college and pro sports does not often afford you that opportunity, and you should relish this unique forum that we have.

2017-18 MSHSAA Media Policies, Procedures and Guidelines

MSHSAA acknowledges the rights and responsibilities of bona fide media representatives as they cover and report on MSHSAA-sponsored activities. The Association and its member schools appreciate the interest generated by media coverage and the publicity given the achievements of our schools and student-athletes.

Reputable news-gathering organizations will understand the need for MSHSAA to have the following policies and procedures for media attending and covering MSHSAA tournament events.

Please note that the following policies apply only to competition conducted by MSHSAA member schools during the MSHSAA post-season tournament series.

1. MSHSAA General Championship Expectations

The MSHSAA Championships are a once-in-a-lifetime experience for most participants, and as such, MSHSAA and its site management personnel must demand stricter clearance and behavioral standards.

All credentials must be worn and displayed at all times and are nontransferable between/among individuals. Furthermore, those receiving credentials to the event are expected to represent their respective outlets in a working capacity while in the press areas, conducting themselves only in the strictest professional standards.

Media credentials for all MSHSAA competitions are NON-transferable. Only the person who is issued the credential, or whose name appears on the credential request, may use a media pass for admission, media room privileges, floor and field access or any other purpose. Under no circumstances will the transfer or borrowing of MSHSAA credentials be tolerated. Members of the media who do not abide by the media rules and regulations established at each MSHSAA tournament site, may have their credentials rescinded and may jeopardize their opportunity to secure credentials in the future.

All photographers and videographers are also expected to abide by event-specific guidelines, including policies regarding flash photography, sideline areas, photography locations, etc. Sports editors: Please make sure you have covered these policies and professional standards with your photography personnel.

Absolutely no cheering, obscene language, verbal criticism of officials or other unprofessional behavior will be tolerated by any media representative at a MSHSAA-sponsored event.

2. Restricted Areas and Procedures

The player and officials locker rooms, practice areas and dressing areas are closed to all media representatives at all times during any MSHSAA-sponsored activity. This restriction includes all photographers, student-media representatives and all news and feature reporters. This policy is in place to protect you and your outlet. It is the philosophy of MSHSAA and its member schools that minors in dressing areas do not mix with cameras and adult reporters, period. There are no exceptions to this rule at any time.

Please check with the host manager or athletic administrator for the specific interview area at each facility.

Likewise, game officials are restricted from issuing comments to the media before, during or after a contest. Any attempt to pursue an official in the playing area, in the dressing areas or on the grounds of the event itself will be considered a violation of the conditions placed on the representative's/outlet's credentials. Rules interpretations may be sought through the site manager, media host or host athletic administrator only.

Please see the photography regulations portion of this publication for restricted photo areas.

Outlets may display only one banner at a tournament venue, and only on a space-available basis. Ideally, banners, when permitted, should be displayed at the station's origination location, and this banner may only be displayed while the outlet is originating. The banner may not display logos or names of advertisers sponsoring the outlet's origination.

Outlets are also reminded that athletic staff representatives of NCAA-member schools (All Divisions) are not to appear as commentators or guest interviews during high school athletic event broadcasts. This is a violation of NCAA rules, which could result in penalties to the NCAA school involved, or jeopardize the eligibility of the student-athletes participating in the game being originated.

3. Applying for Credentials

Each registered MSHSAA media outlet may request credentials for all MSHSAA District and State Championship Series (Sectionals, Quarterfinals, etc.) for all sports personnel meeting all of the following criteria:

- He or she is at least 18-years-old
- He or she is a full-time employee of your outlet, or he or she is a significant part-time employee who makes regular contributions to your publication or station
- He or she is attending the event in a working capacity
- He or she abides by professional behavior and MSHSAA regulations and standards at the event
- He or she agrees not to transfer credentials
- He or she is willing and able to present a valid photo ID to pick up credentials at the designated will-call location.

See item No. 14 for credential requests at the lead-up levels.

Newspapers should provide personnel verification with their application in the form of membership in the Missouri Press Association or previous articles (with byline) or photos (with photo credits) will also meet this requirement.

No credentials are necessary for speech & debate, music or Scholar Bowl.

All outlets covering events at the MSHSAA Championship site (typically the "final four") should submit an official credential request through MSHSAA's online system no later than the designated deadline for each event. The online credential system can be accessed from the Media tab on the MSHSAA website at www.mshsaa.org. The application window for credentials for each of the three seasons will be open for approximately two months for each season. Outlets will need to apply for each season.

2017-18 MSHSAA Media Policies, Procedures and Guidelines

4. Credential Pickup and Event Entry

No credentials will be mailed in advance of the MSHSAA championships. A will-call location will be operated at each championship site.

Packets of working press credentials will be on file alphabetically by each person's last name. The company of the person(s) approved to pick up the credentials, as indicated on the request, will also be listed.

Photo Identification of all person(s) picking up credentials will be required, and the person(s) picking up credentials will be required to sign for receipt.

In your envelope, you will receive your working credential and any necessary event-specific guidelines. Your credential also serves as your admission pass to the venue. Please review the media guidelines before entering the venue. Proceed through the media entry gate and check-in with the media coordinator for further instructions.

Any representative who has not made advance arrangements for media credentials is not entitled to this privilege upon arrival. MSHSAA reserves the right to deny access to media areas to those individuals who have not properly applied for, verified and been granted credentials to a championship-level event.

5. Pre-event Information

Upon entering the media room or similar designated location, you will receive any relative tournament notes.

It is essential that you make an effort to find the media coordinator before taking your seat so that you can be informed of any last-minute changes or procedure changes.

6. Parking, Food, Drinks

With limited parking at most of the MSHSAA Championship venues, media-specific parking is only available at select venues.

Drink refreshments are available at some events when possible. All MSHSAA Championships have easily-accessible concession stands or vending areas, so be prepared to plan your food needs around the event itself.

7. Still and Video Photography

All photographers and videographers are reminded that their designated shooting areas at MSHSAA Championships are specifically laid out and should be strictly adhered to. Credentials must be worn and displayed at all times. There are events where a media armband will need to be worn in addition to the media credential. These armbands will be given upon check-in at the venue. Locker rooms (for teams and officials) and team bench areas are off limits at all events. Photography/videography on the field of play during the game is prohibited at all events. On-field photography is allowed only after the conclusion of the game (for medal presentations, celebration shots, etc.).

It is important that all outlets understand in advance that the images taken by their photographers and videographers at MSHSAA Championship events, by condition of the credentials, may be sold by the outlet only. No media representative is permitted to directly or indirectly market the sale of photography at the event site. Any organization found to be in violation of this policy may not be considered for future credential requests. MSHSAA reserves the right to seek legal and/or monetary damages from violating organizations.

When using video of an event, outlets may use up to five (5) minutes of highlight footage in post-game coverage. Any video usage over the limit will be considered a broadcast and will carry the appropriate rights fee.

See the photography addendum for sport-specific guidelines.

8. Postgame Press Conferences & Interviews

At the MSHSAA Championships in football and basketball, a formal postgame press conference will take place in the interview room. In most instances, the winning coach will precede the losing coach. All immediate postgame interviews must take place in the interview room, with any one-on-ones taking place after the press conference.

Since the mission of MSHSAA is to promote sportsmanship, citizenship and respect from our high school students, we ask that you refrain from asking questions relating to officials' calls during the game or any unsportsmanlike act. Officials are not available for comment before, during or after any contest, and any rules clarification questions should be directed to the site manager, media host or host athletic administrator. At the championship site, the media coordinator will serve as the pool-journalist for any clarifications of official rulings.

Originating radio stations must make postgame interview arrangements before the game with both the MSHSAA media coordinator and the head coach. These interviews must take place during the 10-minute cooling-off period that begins at the final horn.

At all other events, media representatives will have immediate access to coaches and requested players for interviews after a mandatory 10-minute cooling off period. These interviews should take place away from the field of play (especially in softball and baseball where the playing field is needed for field preparations immediately after the game).

Any TV "stand-ups" with coaches and/or players must take place after the press conference. If no press conference is scheduled, interviews may be conducted outside the playing area or in a specified area away from the playing surface.

Prior arrangements with the site's media coordinator shall be made to help accommodate special requests.

Keep in mind that most high school student-athletes are minors and may not be comfortable answering sensitive questions (regarding poor performances, personal tragedies, coaching decisions, etc.). Please do your part to emphasize the positive aspects of the game.

9. Print Media

Credentials will be issued to all print media representatives who meet the criteria outlined in No. 1 & No. 3 above, and who will be working in a professional capacity. All other criteria regarding transfer of credentials, age requirements, credential deadlines, etc., will be strictly enforced.

Spouses, friends, and children of media representatives will not be issued credentials, unless they otherwise meet all the credential application criteria. Non-credentialed individuals (such as children, spouses, friends, co-workers, etc.) and are not allowed in the media areas (press room, press box, floor/field/deck level, etc.).

2017-18 MSHSAA Media Policies, Procedures and Guidelines

10. Student Media Policies

Each school qualifying for an MSHSAA-sponsored team championship event will be allowed three (3), student media credentials to gain access to the media area for the purpose of taking still photography, videography or writing news/feature stories. It is up to the school administrator to decide which students will be issued these credentials.

For MSHSAA-sponsored individual championship events, each qualifying school will be allowed two (2) credentials to be used by a writer, photographer or videographer (school's discretion).

Requests for student media credentials must be faxed or e-mailed to MSHSAA by the appropriate deadlines as other requests.

Press Row is reserved for media covering only games in progress. As soon as a media representative's team has completed its game, the student is expected to vacate the press row.

Media areas at all MSHSAA Championships are directed strictly in a professional manner. Any student who displays any unprofessional behavior will be asked to vacate the media area, and his actions will be reported to the school's media advisor and any on-site school administrators.

No parents, faculty, photography companies or nonworking personnel shall be given a student media credential.

11. Television Stations

Television stations must make prior arrangements with the MSHSAA media coordinator when setting up live remote or stand-up shots at all Championship events. We appreciate and encourage such shots, but want to ensure the easiest arrangements for all parties involved as well as facility restrictions and limitations. This will save everyone time and help alleviate potential snags with event security or any city-specific labor laws (i.e. City of St. Louis, etc.).

When submitting credential requests, please list the names of the person(s) covering the event to the best of your ability at the time of the deadline. We will print the person(s) name on the official credential. We understand that camera and on-air personnel may change due to last-minute assignment revisions. We are willing to make an exception to the credential transfer rule if we are made aware of the change at your earliest convenience.

For video broadcasts (District through Championships), please make prior arrangements with the site manager or media coordinator and have the appropriate rights fee paid before you go to the contest.

Live TV broadcasts carry substantial rights fees to be paid with the MSHSAA office no less than 15 days in advance of the event. A completed TV Broadcast Agreement is required for all MSHSAA event broadcasts beginning with the District Tournament, and a complete list of sponsors must be submitted and approved prior to the broadcast.

MSHSAA will make arrangements to have phone lines available at as many championships as possible. There is no radio broadcast rights fee for "over-the-air" stations prior to the Quarterfinal level.

2017-18 MSHSAA Media Policies, Procedures and Guidelines

14. District, Sectional, Quarterfinal, & Local Site Guidelines

To receive credentials for MSHSAA District, Sectional and Quarterfinal contests (and Semifinal contests in football), please contact the site manager no less than 48 hours before the start of the tournament or contest. The site manager's phone number is available in the district assignment or brackets/results area of the MSHSAA web site (game information link). The local manager will then instruct you on any site-specific regulations or guidelines he or she may implement.

Absolutely no cheering, obscene language, criticism of officials or other unprofessional behavior will be tolerated by any media representative at any MSHSAA-sponsored event.

MSHSAA will honor only legitimate requests for credentials. Persons accompanying media personnel to the tournament/meet in the state series will be admitted to the facility only with a ticket of admission.

Press credentials shall be issued according to the following criteria:

a. Originating Radio Stations- In allocating space for radio stations approved in advance to originate live and/or tape delayed broadcast of the tournament/meet by the site manager (or MSHSAA Office where necessary) priority is given:

- 1) to the station(s) which cover the competing teams -- distributed equally per school
- 2) the station(s) representing the site of the host school
- 3) then to the stations which cover the geographic region involving the site and competing teams
- 4) and finally to other stations.

Stations which cover a team(s) more frequently during the regular season will have priority when all of the above criteria are the same. Assignment of best locations in the facility, too, shall be based upon priority outlined above. Allocation of space will be dependent upon the facility.

Stations approved to originate broadcasts and/or telecasts shall be provided weather-protected facilities if available.

b. Originating Television Stations- In allocating space for television stations approved in advance by the site manager and/or MSHSAA office to televise the complete activity (either live or tape delayed) priority is given:

- 1) to stations covering the competing teams
- 2) to the stations representing the host school
- 3) then to stations which cover the geographic region involving the competing schools and host site
- 4) and finally to other stations.

c. All Other Media- All other requests for credentials shall be honored, and seating shall be assigned based upon the following priority:

- 1) media covering the competing teams
- 2) media serving the site or host city of the meet
- 3) media covering the geographical region involving the host site and the competing teams
- 4) media representing the team(s) scheduled to meet the survivor of this level of state series competition at the next level in the series
- 5) and finally to all other media.

15. Affiliate Media Partner Program

For outlets wishing to pay rights fees for the entire academic year, there is the Affiliate Media Partner Program. For $200 an entity could produce an audio only broadcast of any MSHSAA post-season event. For $300 an entity could produce a video broadcast of any MSHSAA post-season event that is not covered by the MSHSAA production company.

The entity would still be responsible for filling out the appropriate broadcast agreement form and filing it with the site manager for the specific contest. The entity will still be responsible for a sponsor list, as well as a memo from the MSHSAA office stating its membership in the affiliate program.

The fee must be paid by Tuesday, October 3, 2017 in order for the outlet to be considered part of the affiliate program for the fall sports season and the remainder of the academic year.

A second deadline of Friday, February 9, 2018 will be for outlets wishing to participate in the program for winter and spring sports. The fee remains $200 for audio and $300 for video broadcasts.

Once the appropriate deadline has passed, no outlets will be granted "Affiliate" status. For example, an outlet calling on Oct. 28th will not be granted affiliate status for the remaining fall sports. Contests will be billed at the appropriate per-game rate. The same outlet may apply for affiliate status during the winter and spring sports seasons.

16. Late Fees For Credential Requests

For outlets wishing to request credentials after the posted deadline, may be subject to a late fee. For requests made after the deadline for the specific event, the fee is $100. For requests made on the day of the event or during the event, the late fee is $250.

■ MSHSAA General Photography Guidelines

The Missouri State High School Activities Association understands that quality action photographs are a vital part of the print media industry. Access to such shots is often determined by vantage point, lighting, facility, physical limitations, etc.

In the pursuit of that perfect shot, eager photographers often lose perspective of how their actions, location or lighting might affect the event they are covering. Indeed, a common ground between the two perspectives is often difficult. This page has been designed to further assist photographers, videographers, assignment editors and sports personnel in their coverage of high school sports. It should also serve to help school administrators, officials and game personnel in their planning of media accommodations at interscholastic events.

General - The most prominent factor in determining photography guidelines is safety. This includes the safety of the photographer, as well as the players, coaches and officials. Similarly, another highly-significant factor is the continuity of the contest itself without interruption or distraction. All policies that have been developed -- both by the NFHS and MSHSAA -- center on these two factors. There are also issues of privacy, event management and others which often are considered when guidelines are established.

Locker rooms are no place for cameras or media at the high school level. A vast majority of all high school participants are minor children who have the right to privacy in dressing facilities before and after competition. Team benches, dugouts and sideline areas are also off limits.

A common misconception is that camera flashes are not noticeable to an athlete in competition. Some sports have specific regulations (see below) with regard to flash photography, but in general, anytime the outcome of an event or the concentration of an athlete can be altered by a flash -- it should not be used (the start of a race, the "start" whistle in wrestling, a golf swing, a tennis serve, etc.). Flashes should never be aimed directly in the face of any competitor, regardless of the sport. Ceiling-mounted strobes are much less distracting than camera-mounted strobes and are preferred, when possible. Television flood or fill lights should never be aimed at the competition field/floor when the game is in progress. Game officials have the discretion to ask a photographer to change his vantage point if the official feels the players' ability to play without distraction is being jeopardized by the photographer's location or her camera flash. Game administrators and photographers should work together to make sure the players' comfort is never compromised.

For safety reasons, tripods should not be kept near the competition field/court at any time. Photographers should always respect the view of those who may be behind them (such as spectators at basketball, volleyball and wrestling events) during play.

Finally, when there is any doubt with regard to what access a photographer may have at a high school event, ask the host management for any site-specific policies or the best area from which to shoot action shots. Again, working in advance with the administration and officials can often prevent embarrassing situations once the contest has started.

Baseball, Softball - National Federation playing rules prohibit any photographer from entering the playing field (including foul ground) during play. This generally includes any area inside the fenced playing or "live ball" area. For softball only, photographers may enter the playing field and shoot from a deadball area that has been lined off in foul ground in advance. If the field has no such photography box, the playing field may not be entered (see NFHS Rule 1-2-3). Specific focus techniques allow for shooting outside a fenced area, and generally fence work beyond the dugouts is low enough to allow photographers a great vantage point without obstructions. Climbing atop dugouts, fences and scoreboards is highly discouraged and is prohibited during all postseason events. Team bench and dugout areas are restricted to team personnel only, unless a separate photographer's well is attached to either end of a team dugout.

■ MSHSAA General Photography Guidelines

Basketball - Camera and ceiling-mounted strobes are permitted for postseason games, if previously installed. However, flashes may not be used during any free throw situations or in the face of any competitor. Photographers should shoot from the baseline (right side of the goal as one faces the floor), and outside the lane areas and remain at least 3-feet from the baseline at all times.

Football - Per NFHS Rule 1-2-3d and Rule 2-26-8, all photographers and non-team personnel are to remain at least 6 feet from the sideline at all times, and are restricted from the team bench areas and coaching box (extends to each 25-yard line). Generally, flash photography poses no problems in football, but should be avoided before the snap of the ball to avoid a potential offside or encroachment penalty for either team.

Soccer - Photographers are to remain at least 7 feet from the sideline at all times, and are restricted from the team bench areas. Generally, flash photography poses no problems in soccer, but should be avoided during penalty kicks and any time a goal keeper's vision might be impaired by a flash. The endlines of the field can be used for photography, but only outside the box areas and at least 7 feet from the endline.

Volleyball - Flash photography is generally permitted in volleyball. Photographers should be aware of where the "playable" (live ball) area ends on each specific court, and remain outside that area at all times. Generally, the best vantage point for volleyball is the sideline opposite the team bench area and outside of the playable area. Distance is critical due to the potential for play to extend beyond the court boundaries.

Track, Cross Country, Swimming - Flashes should never be used at the start of a race, and any noisy camera mechanism (such as loud auto advance/rewind systems) should also be avoided to ensure a fair and clean start. Camera operators are to stay off the course, running track and bulkhead at all times. Photographers should never cross a running track or cross country course during the race itself, and deckside photographers in swimming should remain at least 3 feet from the edge of the pool at all times. For swimming, the starting area (behind the blocks) will be a restricted area where photography is not allowed.

Wrestling - Flash photography generally poses no problem, but should not be used before the official blows his whistle to start competition (from neutral or referee's positions). Photo personnel should remain at least 10 feet from the edge of the mat, and never sit on the mat itself.

Tennis, Golf - Competitors are usually very sensitive in these two sports with regard to being photographed during competition. If possible, shoot during warm-up or practice. Generally, the greater the distance between the photographer and the competitor, the less the chances of a potential confrontation. Tennis should be shot outside the fence or from an adjacent court, but never in a "live ball" area inside the fence of a competitor's court. Always shoot from behind or slightly-behind a golfer, and stay off the greens at all times.
